ELEVENTH SUMMER SESSION OF MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE

JULY 1—AUGUST 13
1919

MIDDLEBURY, VERMONT
FEBRUARY
1919
Los Castillos de Torresnobles—Dorado
ANNOUNCEMENT

The Eleventh Summer Session of Middlebury College will open to receive students on Monday, June 30, 1919, and will close Wednesday, August 13. The Spanish School will open July 5 and close August 16. Classes will meet daily, Monday to Friday, inclusive, with the exceptions noted under certain courses. On Saturdays libraries and laboratories will be open to students, but class exercises will not be held.

The courses of the Summer Session are of collegiate and advanced grade, fully equivalent in standards maintained to the courses given by Middlebury College in the regular sessions of the academic year. The instructors are selected in part from the faculty of the college, in part from other colleges and universities and also from teachers of known efficiency in special fields.

The Summer Session is open to college students, school officers, and all persons of sufficient maturity to profit by the courses offered; but the most notable feature of the Session is the work of the Modern Language Schools, in which a plan of organization and instruction has been developed which in a comparatively short time has given Middlebury an enviable reputation for the remarkable results secured, and has brought to these schools the patronage of half a hundred colleges and universities. The French and Spanish Schools are more fully described elsewhere in this bulletin. The English School offers courses of general cultural value as well as those of especial interest to students of music, science, history, English literature, political science, and education.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

LOCATION

MIDDLETOWN COLLEGE is situated in a quiet New England village of the best type, about midway between the northern and southern borders of Vermont, on the main line of the Rutland Railroad, easily accessible from Boston, New York, and Montreal. A few miles to the east of the village rise the foothills of the Green Mountains, while the more rugged heights of the Adirondacks stretch along the western skyline. The waters of the historic Otter Creek flow through the village and provide excellent boating toward the south. Abundant springs in the mountains furnish water of unexcelled purity. The college grounds of one hundred and fifty acres occupy a gentle slope rising above the village and are swept by the prevailing winds of summer and shaded by numerous trees.

PURPOSE

The Summer Session is conducted to meet the needs of high school and college instructors desiring training in special branches, graduate students pursuing studies for one of the master’s degrees, and experienced teachers working for professional advancement. Courses of instruction have been carefully arranged to meet the requirements of such students and of others whose interest is more general. College students, graduates, and non-collegiates from various states, as well as teachers, principals, and supervisors, are to be found yearly in the different classes of the Summer Session.
Middlebury College

ADMISSION

Examinations are not required for admission to the Summer Session. Students enrolling in the French and Spanish Schools must satisfy the Deans of those Schools of their adequate preparation for the courses desired.

All students must register at the Director's office before they will be admitted to any course. In registering the student presents a schedule of the courses he desires, pays his fees, and receives an admittance card for each course. Upon presenting this card to the instructor the student will be regularly enrolled as a member of the class. Private students in music and expression must also secure admittance cards before beginning their work.

CREDITS

Students may enter courses without examination, and without being candidates for a degree; but those who desire credits must indicate that fact when they register, and, if candidates for a degree, they must present evidence of their qualifications before they will receive credits, either for baccalaureate or advanced degrees.

The courses of instruction are lettered a, b, c.

Courses lettered a are pursued for their cultural value, and are not counted for credit toward any degree.

Courses lettered b may be counted by properly qualified candidates for two credits toward a baccalaureate degree (A. B. or B. S.) for each full course satisfactorily completed.

Courses lettered c may be counted by properly qualified candidates for two credits toward an advanced degree (A. M. or M. S.) for each full course satisfactorily completed. Candidates for a master's degree must hold a baccalaureate degree from Middlebury College or from some other college approved by the Committee on Graduate Work.
Not more than six credits will be given an undergraduate at a Summer Session.

Courses pursued for credits must be completed by an examination, which shall be of the grade and standard given in such courses in the academic year. Final examinations are optional with other students, but are desirable for all.

CERTIFICATES

Students satisfactorily completing their courses will be given, upon application, a Summer Session Certificate indicating the work done. These certificates of work completed in Summer Session are useful evidences of professional study, and often are accepted by examiners, school boards, and superintendents in lieu of examinations.

THE MASTER'S DEGREE

Graduate students are welcome in all courses in which work is sufficiently advanced to count for a Master's degree. To obtain the degree of Master of Arts, or Master of Science, thirty credits are necessary. These may be gained by attending not less than four summer sessions, one of which may be at some other institution of similar grade. The Committee on Graduate Work will pass upon the credentials and courses of candidates for the Master's degree.

SOCIAL LIFE AND ENTERTAINMENT

In addition to the academic attractions of the college it is the policy of the officers of the Summer Session to arrange for various forms of social and intellectual entertainment for the students in attendance. Provision is made for frequent lectures, for social evenings, plays, and dances. Organ, voice, and piano recitals are given under the direction of the Department of Music. Group activities in the several departments of instruction, especially in the music and language groups, constitute a delightful feature of the social life. The self-activity of the students is encouraged in all wholesome directions.

OUT-OF-DOOR LIFE

No college in the East offers more attractive surroundings than are found at Middlebury in Summer. The climate is delightful and the program of studies is so arranged as to leave much of the afternoons and Saturdays free for recreation. This may be in the nature of short walks, or longer hikes, boating or canoeing on Otter Creek or Lake Dunmore, mountain climbing expeditions to the virgin forests of the Green Mountains, or automobile trips to points of historic and scenic interest, in which the Otter Creek valley abounds. Everybody should visit the famous cave of the Green Mountain Boys, the Ann Story monument, and the ruins of the old forts at Crown Point and Ticonderoga.

Little journeys are easily made on foot to points like Chipman Hill, Battell Park (east of the village), the Government Morgan Horse Farm, and the falls of the Otter at Beldens. Groups of students frequently spend an afternoon at the lakeside or in the mountain forests. Party lunches are provided by the matrons of the halls at a reasonable charge. Among the most enjoyable features of a summer’s sojourn at Middlebury are the camp-fire suppers and informal picnics of these friendly groups. Good automobile roads make accessible a large number of interesting places within the radius of a day’s trip from Middlebury, such as Mt. Philo, Grandview, Bread Loaf Inn, Lake Dunmore, Rattlesnake Point, Silver Lake, Falls of Lhana, Pleiad Lake, Ripton
Summer Session

Gorge, Fern Lake, Ellen and Lincoln Mountains. Ausable Chasm, Ticonderoga, Lake George, and Lake Champlain may be reached by railroad or automobile. Motor boat trips on Lake Champlain may be made from Long Point and Thompson’s Point at slight cost.

BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

The Summer Session enjoys the full use of the buildings and grounds of the College. The headquarters of the Summer Session is the Old Chapel, the central building of the Old Stone Row on the lower campus. The office of the Director is in the pedagogical suite on the ground floor of the building at the left of the entrance.

Starr Library, with trained librarians in attendance, offers its facilities to all students of the Summer Session. The Pedagogical Library is housed on the ground floor of the Old Chapel. Here may be found a well-equipped educational library, current pedagogical literature, and files of the leading educational magazines. Other departmental libraries will be found in the Chemistry Building and in Warner Science Hall.

The Departments of Latin, History and Political Science are located on the second and third floors of the Old Chapel building.

In the Hall of Chemistry courses in Chemistry, English, and French are conducted. The courses in Bacteriology are given in Warner Science Hall in the Biology rooms on the second floor.

Music Hall, on Weybridge Street, is used by the Department of Music. Mead Memorial Chapel is used for the more important lectures of general interest, as well as musical recitals.

McCullough Gymnasium is supplied with abundant locker rooms, shower baths, and equipment for students who play indoor games. All facilities for indoor and outdoor athletics are free to all students of the Summer Session. The old athletic ground, situated near the McCullough Gymnasium on the campus, furnishes a convenient space for out-of-door dances and sports and is still patronized by summer students. The fields for baseball, football, and track athletics are located on the Porter Athletic Field, of some eighty acres in extent, situated southeast of the old college campus.

TENNIS

The college provides six tennis courts, three for men, conveniently located near the lockers and shower baths of McCullough Gymnasium, and three others near Pearsons Hall, which are reserved for women. The courts are reserved by the College for the exclusive use of the students of the Summer Session. No charge is made for their use, or for that of the gymnasium and athletic field. Students should bring tennis rackets, nets, bathing and gymnasium suits, and baseball supplies.

HALLS OF RESIDENCE

Pearsons Hall is a large white marble structure of colonial style, built in 1911 as a hall of residence for women. It is located on a commanding height overlooking the surrounding country in all directions. Close by is Battell Cottage, with rooms for thirty-two persons and a large dining-hall accommodating more than a hundred. Ample, shaded grounds adjoin Battell Cottage and Pearsons Hall, and the latter, besides containing single and double living rooms, dressing and bath rooms, has a large social hall. Chairs and benches placed on the lawn and under the trees provide students pleasant opportunities for reading and study out-of-doors.
Hepburn Hall is a new dormitory of the college, erected in 1916. The building is fire-proof in construction, and is situated on an eminence overlooking the old college campus, which in turn overlooks the town. The windows of the new dormitory command views of surpassing beauty in all directions. In the hall of residence rooms are arranged en suite, one commodious study adjoined by two well lighted and ventilated bedrooms, with toilet connected with each suite. The rooms are adequately equipped with oak furniture specially purchased for this hall, of simple and pleasing design. Towels and bed linen, with one pair of blankets, are supplied for each bedroom. A loggia connects the residence hall with the refectory, above which is a handsomely furnished social hall, decorated with big game trophies, provided with a piano, and equipped with electric fans.

For students who prefer not to live in the larger dormitories Hillside and Hillcrest cottages afford pleasant home-like quarters.

ENGLISH SCHOOL

The English School offers courses in the special fields of English Language and Literature, Latin, Comparative Government, International Relations, History, Chemistry, and Education.

In the English Department of this School the courses are planned especially to meet the needs of teachers and advanced students who desire to continue study through more than one session of the School. At the same time an effort is made to offer each year English courses which will be of interest and value to the one-session student, whether undergraduate or advanced. Opportunities for dramatic production are given under expert direction.
The following arrangement covers the cycle of courses for a three-year period:

First Year (1919): Shakespeare's Contemporaries; English Poetry of the Eighteenth Century; Victorian Prose and Poetry; Composition.

Second Year (1920): English Poetry before Shakespeare; English Poetry of the Seventeenth Century; English Drama since 1660; Composition.

Third Year (1921): Shakespeare; English Poetry of the Nineteenth Century; American Poetry; Composition.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS

Under Courses of Instruction will be found detailed descriptions of the work offered in Organic Chemistry, Industrial Chemistry, Latin Poetry, Roman Origins, Pedagogy, English, Reading and Story-Telling, History, Comparative Government, and International Relations.

MUSIC SCHOOL

In addition to the work hitherto afforded in voice, organ, and piano, the Department of Music now offers attractive courses in the theory and history of music, a course in Platform Art, and one in Recital Repertoire.

Vocal training will be given, as heretofore, by Miss Minnie Hayden of Boston. Former students will be pleased to learn that Miss Hayden will be assisted next summer by Miss Gladys Lott. The course in public school music which has proved helpful in previous years to those engaged in musical instruction in educational institutions will again be repeated.

Professor Lewis J. Hathaway, of the Department of Music in Middlebury College, will offer courses in piano, organ, harmony, counterpoint, and music appreciation. Recitals will be held frequently in Mead Memorial Chapel.
EDUCATION

The Summer Session will continue its pedagogical work in cooperation with the State Department of Education. Not only is the privilege extended to Vermont teachers of free tuition, but the Department of Pedagogy has organized a special program to meet the peculiar needs of Vermont secondary teachers at the present time. Vermont teachers should note carefully the opportunity for their professional improvement provided by the courses in pedagogy, music, and the languages. For particulars see description of courses.

ROMANCE LANGUAGE SCHOOLS

In the last few years the Modern Language Schools of the Summer Session of Middlebury College have attracted wide attention among progressive language teachers throughout the country. The organization and management of these Language Schools was developed first in connection with the German School, conducted for several years by Professor Lilian L. Stroebe of Vassar College. The methods are well described in an article by Doctor Stroebe in the January and February numbers (1919) of "Education." While circumstances made necessary the discontinuance of the German School, the French and Spanish Schools have continued and have developed remarkably during the last two years.

The teaching in these Schools is direct, intensive, and continuous. Students receive instruction in small groups from native teachers under skilled supervision and are constantly in the atmosphere of the language studied through conversations, lectures, recitations, and social activities. The native language is the language of the Schools at all times. The separation of the Schools in housing and dining arrangements renders possible that degree of isolation which frees the student from having a diversity of interests. The arrangement of courses and the methods of conducting them provide a concentration and a coordination which cannot be brought about in any other way. The foreign language facilities presented by Schools organized and managed according to the Middlebury plan are incomparably the best that can be found in the summer of 1919. They rival the advantages of foreign study conducted under the most favorable conditions, while the cost is not more than one-fourth or one-fifth of the cost of a European trip.

The originator of the Middlebury plan of organizing and directing Modern Language work in Summer Sessions has recently written: "A really well conducted summer school may offer even a better opportunity for learning a language than does a six weeks' stay abroad. We all know that there are criticisms to be made of the management of the summer courses in France, Germany, and Spain. The courses are mostly lectures, delivered before a large number of students of different nationalities, with unlike educational attainments, to whom the foreign language offers different kinds of problems. There is no coordination and supervision of work, and students receive no individual attention. The instructors abroad, as a rule, have very little knowledge of conditions in the United States, and they do not understand the special problems confronting our high school teachers. It is very hard to find a boarding house where only one or two foreigners are received, where the foreign language is spoken free from dialect and free from local peculiarities, and where intelligent help in the acquisition of the language can be expected."

Students contemplating foreign language study abroad in 1920 or 1921 are urged to prepare themselves for their European trip by first securing not only command of the language but a proper background for intelligently interpreting what they see. Many travelers fail in their purpose largely because they are insufficiently prepared to understand life and conditions abroad. To former students of the Modern Language Schools at Middlebury, and to any others who contemplate foreign travel in 1920, the Middlebury Summer Session will have an interesting announcement to make at the proper time.

FRENCH

The French School will open July 1 and close August 13. Prof. H. P. Williamson de Visme, Director of the Ecole du Chateau de Soisy, Soisy-sous-Etiolles, France, well-known through his work at Princeton, the University of Chicago, and Middlebury as a pioneer of direct language instruction, will again return from France to direct the French School. With Professor de Visme are associated Dr. G. D. de la Jarrie, Officer of Public Instruction of the French Government, and Prof. Edwin L. Baker of Oberlin College, a remarkable linguist, whose extensive travels and rare dramatic and musical skill will do much to enrich the social life of the School.

As now the commercial and industrial relations between France and the United States of America will be more important than ever before, it is timely to make known the natural and industrial riches of France and her colonies, her commercial laws and customs. Therefore, the courses have been organized to cover: History, Geography, Customs, Mineral and Agricultural Products, Industries, Exports and Imports, Laws of Commercial Relations of France and her Colonies: Algeria, Morocco, Tunesia, Senegalia, Congo, Colonies of the Ivory Coast, Madagascar, New Caledonia, Tonquin, Annam, Cambodgia, Cochin China. The French Government has empowered Dr. G. de la Jarrie to organize these courses in the United States of America. The Chamber of Commerce of New York and the Y. M. C. A. understand the value of such courses and are recommending them to students of foreign commerce. It is also necessary that Professors and Instructors speak of France and her Colonies with more detailed accuracy and knowledge than in the past.

The courses of instruction are designed for teachers of French and students who have already attained some proficiency in the language. No beginners' courses are offered. The School brings American teachers into direct contact with native French teachers. Special emphasis is paid to acquiring fluency and ease in conversation. The students are instructed in small groups and are in touch with instructors at all times. French is made the language of the School in the students' outside activities as well as in the classroom.

So far as possible classroom exercises are held in the morning hours. Excursions, individual study, social activities, and the enjoyment of the open country occupy the remainder of the day. In the evenings are social gatherings, illustrated lectures on French life and art, dramatics, reading of French poetry, dances, musicales, etc.

Special accommodations for this School are provided in Pearsons Hall, with French tables in the dining hall at Battell Cottage, and the exclusive use of the social hall in Pearsons on stated evenings of each week.

The French House is generously provided with books, pictures, periodicals, and newspapers. Officers of the Bureau of Schools, France, cooperate with the Dean of the French School in securing materials illustrative of French life and art. The French teachers are in charge of the tables in the dining hall. Thus students have the opportunity to hear and speak and think French continuously throughout the Summer Session.
SPANISH

The Spanish School will open July 5 and close August 16. Senor Julián Moreno-Lacalle, of the Department of Modern Languages, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., who has directed the Spanish School from the first, has been retained as Dean in 1919. Professor Lacalle will be assisted by a corps of Spanish educators.

A sufficient number of teachers is employed to render possible a high degree of attention to the individual needs of students, the plan being based on a ratio of one teacher to eight or ten students. The constant association of the students with the members of the teaching staff develops facility and ease in the use of the spoken language.

The courses of study have been planned to meet the real and practical needs of teachers of Spanish in American schools and colleges. They are of collegiate and post-graduate grade, in the field of language, literature, and social institutions of Spain and Latin-America. No elementary courses offered.

A unique and attractive feature is the practice of holding class recitations out-of-doors on shaded portions of the campus. Afternoon readings and talks are frequently held under the trees. Attention is given to chorus singing of Spanish songs and to practice in Spanish folk dancing. Illustrated lectures relating to the different courses are given weekly by members of the Spanish faculty.

Hepburn Hall is reserved exclusively for the Spanish school. An attractive dining hall is connected by a loggia with the dormitory. The social hall is furnished with writing material, and with papers, magazines, music, and works of art which bring the students of the language into intimate relationship with Spanish life.
A WORD OF ADVICE

The Director of the Summer Session frequently receives requests from teachers who desire to divide their work between two Modern Language Schools. These requests are almost invariably based upon a misapprehension of one sort or another. Some teachers fear that concentration upon one language means monotony and a dreary grind, while others think they can really accomplish more by studying in two fields. As a matter of fact, a great variety is found in the different subjects to be studied in the foreign language—history, geography, literature,—while the amusements and recreation offered by the School are all conducted in the foreign language. It is indeed of importance that every student should make the best possible use of his time, since the duration of the Summer Session is only six weeks. This is exactly why concentration upon one language is absolutely necessary. It is remarkable how little teachers can gain by trying to combine the study of several subjects in a short time. It is much better to concentrate their efforts upon one language or upon one subject for one year and to take up the other subject or language the following year. In no case should the students plan to divide their time between the French and Spanish Schools. Such a course would result in disappointment, as the student would labor under unnecessary difficulties and would fail to receive the greatest benefit from either School.

TUITION AND FEES

Although the cost of the Summer Session to the College has materially increased, no advances in tuition rates have been made in the Session of 1919. All students are charged a registration fee of $5. No charge for instruction is made to Vermont teachers or to clergymen who enroll in the regular session: but the registration fee of $5 is charged in all cases. Vermont teachers are persons actually engaged in teaching in the public schools of the State and holding a certificate issued by the State. All such who desire exemption from tuition should bring their credentials with them.

Graduates of Middlebury College of the Class of 1919 may avail themselves of the privileges of Vermont teachers and pay only the registration fee for matriculation in the English School: this privilege does not include individual or private instruction or membership in the Modern Language or Music Schools.

Residents of Middlebury or Addison County may register in any single course, except in the Modern Language Schools and private lessons in Music, for $5 in addition to the registration fee and laboratory fees, or in any two courses for $10 in addition to these fees.

The tuition rates, except in Music, are made upon the basis of three five-hour courses, and additional courses will be charged pro rata.
AUDITORS

Persons regularly enrolled in the Summer Session may apply to the Director for auditors' tickets, which will admit them as listeners to specified lecture courses in which they are not enrolled as students for credits. Such requests will be granted so far as consistent with the interests of the Session when they do not interfere with the work of the regular students.

BOARD AND ROOM

Life in all of the halls of residence is made as attractive and domestic as possible. The college farm, dairy, and garden are drawn upon for fresh and seasonable supplies, and it would be hard to duplicate at summer resorts, at twice the cost, the housing and dining accommodations provided. Board, with furnished room, is provided at Hepburn Hall, Pearson Hall, Battell Cottage, Hillcrest Cottage, and Hillside Cottage at prices varying from $8 to $12 a week, according to the desirability of the room or suite. Party lunches for excursions and picnics are supplied at a reasonable rate.

Occasionally houses in or near the village may be rented for the session or for the summer, and accommodations can be secured outside the College in numerous homes and the excellent hotels of the village. The Director will be glad to aid any persons desiring to secure accommodations outside the College, but all the business arrangements must be concluded by the parties concerned.

THE OPENING OF THE SESSION

All students should plan to arrive in season to begin work at the opening of the Session. The halls of residence will be open on Monday, June 30, and students may also register on that day. Tuesday will be taken up by registration and assignments of class work; recitations will begin promptly Wednesday morning, July 2. The first general assembly of students and instructors will occur in McCullough Gymnasium Wednesday evening at eight o’clock.

ADVANCE REGISTRATION

Since accommodations are limited, it is advisable for reservations of board and room to be made as early as possible; and the Director will appreciate it if students will inform him of their intention to attend the Session and state the courses of study they desire. Tentative reservations will be made until June 1st without charge, but no reservation fee will be held beyond that date without a deposit fee of $5, which will be applied on the student’s account at the opening of the Session. Persons who desire fuller information may address
Middlebury College

MIDDLEBURY, VT.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

CHEMISTRY

Arthur Randall Davis, A.B., Assistant Professor of Chemistry.

1. Organic Chemistry.

Lectures and laboratory work. A study of the synthesis and reactions of the more important classes of organic compounds. The work will be adapted so far as possible to the individual needs of the student. Laboratory fee, $5. Daily 9:00 to 11:00.

Assistant Professor Davis
2. Industrial Chemistry. c

Lectures and collateral reading. Students may devote all of their time to specialization in some particular industry such as the manufacture of intermediates and dyes, paper, explosives, paints, cement, rubber, steel, and coal tar products. There will be periods for consultation and discussion. Fee, $5. Daily 10:00 to 12:00.

Assistant Professor Davis

Note: All the laboratories and equipment of the Department may be utilized by the Summer Session. Special work in any field will be arranged for advanced students.

EDUCATION

FRANK EUGENE HOWARD, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Pedagogy.

1. Psychology of Elementary School Subjects. b

A study of the psychological principles underlying effective instruction in the fundamental subjects of the school curriculum. The work of grades one to eight will be considered, and the subjects of reading, language, spelling, writing, and arithmetic will be emphasized, but special attention will be given to the grades and subjects which the needs and interests of the class seem to justify. Some study will be made of standard tests and means of measuring the results of teaching. The aim of the course is to aid elementary teachers to judge, devise, and adapt methods of instruction in the basic school subjects. Daily at 8:00.

Assistant Professor Howard

2. Secondary Education. b, c

This course will deal with some phase of the junior-senior high school problem. One of the two following lines of work
(A-B) will be pursued, depending on the needs and interests of those presenting themselves for the course.

A. (a) A brief survey of the factors which have led to the present movement toward reorganization of secondary education. (b) The mental and physical characteristics of adolescence and their relation to school work. (c) Distinction between elementary and secondary education. (d) Various practical, educational, and social advantages of the junior high school plan. (e) General problems of administration and curriculum.

B. The pedagogy of junior-senior high school subjects. An analysis of the mental processes involved in learning and applying the content of the various subjects. The mental difficulties of the pupils. Common defects in methods and textbooks. Adapting methods to the maturity of pupils, individual differences, and special needs and conditions. Teaching pupils to study effectively. Motivating and socializing the work. Two or three of the high school subjects, including English, will receive special attention. Daily at 10:00.

Assistant Professor Howard

Professor Williams

4. COMPOSITION.  b, c
In this course attention will be given both to the theory of composition and to practical work in composition. The work will be planned to meet the needs of the individual student, whether undergraduate or teacher of composition. Daily at 10:00.

Professor Williams

5. THE ART OF READING.  a
A course in the dramatic interpretation of literature, designed to develop the power of dramatic reading, and to promote interest in and the understanding of the masterpieces of English through their vocal expression. This course is also designed to train teachers in practical methods to be used with classes in oral English and public speaking. Special attention is given to voice production, diction, and enunciation. Daily at 11:00.

Miss Lott

6. STORY-TELLING. a

Story-telling has again taken its place among the arts. Its present popularity seems to be an outgrowth of the recognition of its educational value and teachers are adopting it in their classrooms. This course covers the following points,—grouping and dramatization of stories, practical experience in telling stories to children, how to tell stories, what stories to tell. Daily at 3:00.

Miss Lott

Note: Miss Lott will take a limited number of private students in dramatic reading.
